¹ The “better normal” has blended as a primary mode of delivery. The option to take the program (lecture and lab) under a fully online mode shall be subject to special cases (which only cover the first semester of SY 2022-2023 to help students and parents in their transition. Special cases cover those students based abroad or who have yet to be vaccinated). The CARE teaching-learning guidelines shall give way to the Better Normal teaching-learning guidelines.

² Alert level system is based on the IATF alert level system and assumes that CHED/DepEd advisory or flexible learning is still in effect. The CARE teaching learning guidelines shall be in effect with adjustments, following some online components associated with the alert level.

³ Onsite components will follow CHED advisory on programs that can be offered onsite.

⁴ Supplemental are additional and optional activities that students may take on top of the online mode of delivery. Students who would opt for this must prepare the following requirements for submission: vaccination certificate, and parent consent.

⁵ Field work and practicum depends on the CHED advisory and can be taken by students either online or onsite. Guidelines related to these or any off-campus activities shall be released

Exams ¹

- Written	Onsite/online	Online	Online	Online	Online
- Demo/practicals (for major subjects)	Onsite/online	Onsite	Onsite	Online	Online
Consultations	Onsite/Online	Online/Onsite	Online	Online	Online
Defense	Onsite/Online	Online/Onsite	Online	Online	Online

¹ For exams, the mode of delivery shall depend on the alert level system. No option is provided, except for special cases. Those who cannot take the onsite exams/practicals shall receive a grade of INC, subject to guidelines for completion. The following requirements required by supplemental classes shall be followed. Dormitories or housing shall be made available at cost for those who will be travelling from distant areas.
